Magical Mallorca

In association with Bon Vivant Travel

Forget the ‘Brits Abroad’ image that has been portrayed for decades – move away from Magaluf and you’ll discover a beautiful island full of history, world class hotels and a rejuvenated restaurant scene.

CODE recently visited Mallorca to report on its hotel scene – here’s our pick of the best.

Belmond La Residencia

Located in the picturesque village of Deià, this converted sixteenth and seventeenth-century manor house, which looks like a village itself with its stone pathways, is one of the most exclusive hotels in Mallorca.

Rooms are full of character with Mallorcan antiques sitting alongside pieces of modern art from local artists. The hotel exhibits works of art in the onsite gallery and has a revolving series of in-house local artists.

At every turn you have gorgeous views of the surrounding mountains and olive groves, but for a truly romantic experience, dine under the olive trees at the El Olivio restaurant.

Hotel Sant Francesc

The place to stay in the middle of Palma is Hotel Sant Francesc. The stunning building is full of character and charm located a short walk from the city’s restaurants, bars and shops.

A traditional structure with a contemporary design and feel, rooms are effortlessly chic with a soft, muted colour scheme of cream and grey. A visit to the rooftop bar is a must when visiting Palma – enjoy a sundowner cocktail with views of Palma’s rooftops or even take a dip in the splash pool.

Park Hyatt Mallorca

The Park Hyatt Mallorca is the group’s first resort in Europe, located on the East of the island. Designed to resemble a Mallorcan village, it includes a central village square that leads to the various pools, restaurants and bars.

The Balearic restaurant and Tapas Bar offer a menu of local flavours headed up by Basque Michelin-starred chef David Garcia, while pan-Asian cuisine is offered at Asia. Rooms are chic and understated in light colours with dark grey accents with beautiful views over the surrounding Canyamel valley.
